

LifeLine Ambulance, Inc. Moves into New Station in Omak, Washington

April 1, 2017 LifeLine Ambulance, Inc., moved into a new station in Omak, Washington. The new station is 10,000 square feet with 8 bays, spacious training room, and improved crew quarters. The new ambulance station location offers improved response time to the communities we serve. It also provides improvement for team members to assist in them getting better sleep during down time with 8 independent sleeping rooms that include black out shades. Apparatus are now housed inside a climate control bay which protects the units from the extreme hot & cold weather. The new station also includes a training room to support needs of our team members, as well as the Communities in Okanogan County. LifeLine hired a new Training Coordinator to improve community training in First Aid & CPR/AED along with development training for EMS professionals. Okanogan County is very rural which creates travel challenges for EMS professionals to obtain necessary training. LifeLine sees a critical need to have well-trained community members in First Aid & CPR/AED which is vital to improving patient outcomes in a rural setting.
